which he extended to synch do the Richmond people. When he had concluded, he says, he was expected to stand back to make way for others, but the Emperor took a step forward, extending his hand, and in a very happy little speech sent his greetings. The Empress also received him with "a most bewitching and charming smile."

Later the Emperor called Dr. Menzel forward, and presented him with a bronze medal, engraved with the words, "In Remembrance of This Hour." "At that time," says Dr. Menzel to his children, "my mind flew back to you, and I wished for nothing so much but that you might have been there."

THE EMPRESS'S GUEST.

Dr. Menzel says he then stepped back, and a few minutes afterwards the Empress sent a court marshal to him and invited him to spend the evening with the the lover of the beautiful and sublime in

The Castle of Ian Dhu, an old ruin, shown in the foreground of the picture, was erected in the twelfth century by "Ian Dhu" (black John) Macdonald, one of the lords of the isles, who figure so prominently in the early history of Scotland, and in the works of Sir Walter Scott and other writers. The picture has attracted a good deal of attention and attracted a good deal of attention and mach marks which merited praise.

Robert McHerney Dead.

Mr. Robert R. McBerney, who for so many years had been general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Associations of New York city, died on Tuesday at Ciffton Springs, New York. He had been familiarly called the father of the association, He was born in Ireland in 1837, his father being a prominent physician. He became secretary of the New York Association when it was nothing but a small library and reading-room, thurty-five years ago, and from the day he took hold he proved to be a most valuable man. He lived to see fourteen branches of the association organized in the city, owning eleven magnificent buildings. He was the guiding power in International Association work, as well as a strong force in the work of the World's Committee.
